

Letter to DIRECTOR, FBI
NK 100-22690

"and there came a dark night in the hot Pennsylvania summer. It was in the country, where LOWENFELS had gone to live. He had suffered a heart attack and was resting in a small cottage. In the dark summer midnight, agents of the FBI surrounded his little cabin. Then they charged. Brutally they aroused the sick man, forced him to dress hastily, then kidnapped him in a car. They drove for forty miles and finally at dawn dragged him into a court of justice - a court where seven other persons were being charged with him for the crime of being 'alleged Communists'."
